JT Moring is known for his compelling songs and stunning use of language, as seen when rhyming “penitentiary” with “in a pincher tree.” He has performed widely and has been cheered at in at least eight languages, including “Diminuendo e ritardando!”, “Achtung! Mein kampf!”, and “Arriba, arriba! Andele, andele! Yiha!” His work has received much critical commentary. Mrs. AT Moring of Cincinnati says “This boy sure has a bunch of songs. You really should listen to them.” She then adds, “Otherwise he’ll hang around here all the time making that noise.”

A man of adventure, JT (short for J. T.) has stood on the bottom of the ocean, spent three days in a cave (though not on purpose), and climbed several mountains, both up and down. JT is the relative of many kings and queens, all of whom are, tragically, deceased. He loves little children, but does NOT allow them to sleep in his bed, OR to examine his magazine collection. He was born in the previous millennium, and is not dead yet. Those intrepid readers who have reached made it this far are praised for their perseverance, and will be pleased to know that many of the above facts are actually true.
